

Yasuhiro Matsunaga is an Associate Professor in the Graduate School of Science and Engineering at Saitama University and concurrently a Unit Leader at the RIKEN Center for Computational Science. His research interests include molecular dynamics simulations, enhanced sampling, and machine learning for understanding protein structure and dynamics.